

Southeastern Ethics and Philosophy of Technology

ANNUAL WORKSHOP

The annual Southeastern Ethics and Philosophy of Technology (SEPOT) conference provides a forum for regional academic work in ethics, philosophy of technology, and Science and Technology Studies (STS). As a collaborative effort with Virginia Tech's STS program, SEPOT brings together researchers from across the region. Informally structured over a full Saturday in September, SEPOT offers a friendly environment for participants to workshop their ideas in progress, try new concepts, and collaborate with colleagues in an interdisciplinary context. SEPOT leverages the strengths of the Charlotte region, Virginia Tech's internationally-recognized STS program, and the UNC Charlotte Department of Philosophy's strengths in practical philosophy. For more information, contact Gordon Hull (ghull@unc.edu) or Ashley Shew (shew@vt.edu).